

NEWSCAST

DAILY INSIGHTS

19 February 2016

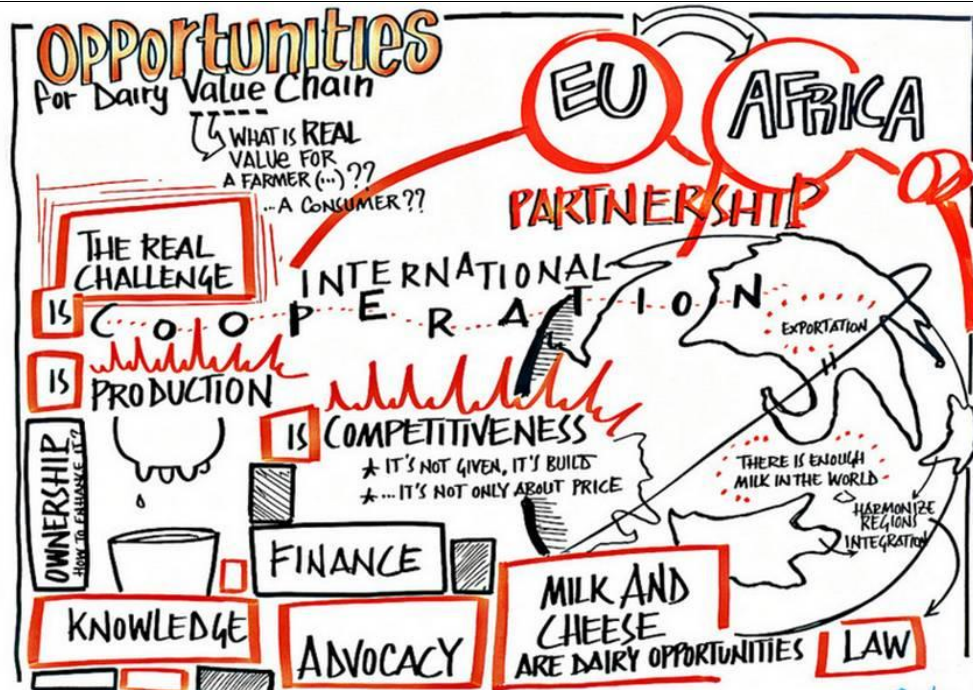

Managing Waste in Emerging Markets

Growing economic prosperity is rapidly increasing waste volumes in emerging countries. We discuss how governments can react to contain human and ecological health risks.

read more...

ADDING VALUE TO AFRICAN PRODUCTS AND SERVICES

Why do African countries continue to export raw materials only to buy them back in the form of finished products? It is high time African countries focused their efforts on building up industries, skills and technologies so they can produce their own high quality products, creating much-needed jobs and income for their people.

read more...

Five Reasons why Enterprises must entertain the Internet of Things

We are on the crest of the Fourth Industrial Revolution. After what seems to be an endless dawn, the Internet of Things has become less related to hype and more about the obvious effect it will have on connected society. The eureka! moment for IoT may never come as every item in the world is gradually connected to the Internet.

read more...

The new mind control

The internet has spawned subtle forms of influence that can flip elections and manipulate everything we say, think and do

read more...

Research & Innovation Directorate: REGENT Business School

2016

www.regent.ac.za

Click here

Climate Change and Food Security

